Justice Davis to speak at Leadership Fayette County graduation For immediate release Thursday, May 12, 2011

OAK HILL, W.Va. – Supreme Court Justice Robin Jean Davis is scheduled to speak at 4 p.m. Sunday, May 15, at the Oak Hill Holiday Lodge to the graduates of Leadership Fayette County.

Leadership Fayette County, modeled after Leadership West Virginia, is a program sponsored by the Fayette County Board of Education, the Fayette County Commission, and the Fayette County Chamber of Commerce. Twelve high school students are chosen competitively each year – at least one from each county high school – to participate. Each receives a $500 college stipend from the non-profit Fayette County Education Fund.

They meet once a month to study such topics as team building, economic development, education, tourism, county government, the judicial system, and community service. The students participate in real-world experiences such as helping develop a nature trail system and meetings to update the county's comprehensive plan.

Justice Davis' speech will be part of a graduation banquet.
