ABOUT FTC

The West Virginia Family Treatment Courts (FTC) are a cooperative effort of the Circuit Court, Child Protective Services, substance use treatment providers, and other professionals involved in the welfare of children in the foster care system. These courts are a proven, evidence-based intervention designed to break the cycle of parental substance use disorder and child welfare involvement. FTCs integrate judicial oversight, structured treatment, and family-centered support services to help parents achieve long-term recovery while working toward the safe reunification of their children.

ELIGIBILITY

- Involved in an active child abuse/neglect (JA) proceeding in Circuit Court,
- Adjudicated an abusing/neglectful parent,
- Granted a post-adjudicatory improvement period, &
- Meets the criteria for a substance use disorder.

OUR GOALS

GUIDE PARENTS TOWARD RECOVERY

Through timely treatment & consistent support, FTC helps parents begin their road to recovery & make lasting changes to enhance their lives.

LESSEN FUTURE CHILD WELFARE INVOLVEMENT

Children of parents who graduate FTC are less likely to be placed back into foster care after successful reunification.

HELP CHILDREN ACHIEVE PERMANENCY

Ensure the children in our communities exit foster care and achieve permanency faster than traditional child abuse/neglect court proceedings.
